Build Across America is NAHB's national workforce development program that introduces young children to the trades during Careers in Construction Month. HBA's across the country will host this event for local children K-6th grade- all on the same day!

The House That She Built book inspired this initiative which aims to help bridge the gap of the skilled labor shortage by educating and exposing children to STEAM and construction careers and elevating women in the industry. Students will learn about careers in construction directly from tradespeople and engage in hands-on projects that will cultivate curiosity and creativity.

Don't miss out on your complimentary The House That She Built materials! ✨ ✨ ✨
